
EDITORIAL STAFF BIOS

Editor-in-Chief

Frank J. Bewkes is a third-year Ph.D. student at the Trachtenberg School, specializing in social policy and sexuality. A scholar of LGBTQ rights-related law and policy, he is an adjunct professor currently teaching at GW Law School, Cornell in Washington, and Georgetown's McCourt School. He has previously worked for such organizations as the Center for American Progress and the ACLU. Frank holds an LLM from NYU School of Law, a JD from GW Law School, and a BA in political science from Yale University. In his free time, he enjoys spending time with his friends and family, singing, and genealogy. Born in New York and raised in Connecticut, Frank is the proud son of Susan Frank Kelley and Jeffrey L. Bewkes.

Managing Editor

Sarah Mohammadi is a second-year Master of Public Policy student with a concentration in urban policy. She graduated from George Mason University with a degree in Conflict Analysis and Resolution and a minor in Islamic Studies. In her free time, Sarah enjoys reading, hiking, and taking her dog on long walks.

Executive Editor

Nathan Varnell is a second-year Master of Public Administration student concentrating in program evaluation and policy analysis. Nathan is currently a fellow at the Northern Virginia Transportation Commission, the regional body advancing public transit in NoVa. Before coming to Trachtenberg, Nathan graduated from Texas A&M University with a degree in political science and journalism, where he served as an editor at The Battalion newspaper and worked with non-profits serving essential workers in the campus community. In his spare time, Nathan enjoys museums, movies, and podcasts.

Associate Editors

Arub Butt is a first-year Master of Public Policy Student concentrating in Public-Private Policy Management and Environmental Policy. She completed her undergraduate degree in Political Science and History at Bryn Mawr College. In her free time, Arub enjoys reading, watching TV, traveling, and trying new restaurants/activities in DC.

Emma Campbell is a first-year Master of Public Administration student. She graduated from Brigham Young University, where she studied English, professional writing, and international development. Emma has recently been involved with grant writing and development work at education and health-focused NGOs. In her free time, she enjoys playing piano and violin, exploring national parks, and reading.

Mairead Crotty is a second-year Master of Public Policy student at the Trachtenberg School. She graduated from the University of Virginia with a degree in English and Government and currently works as a paralegal at the House Office of the Legislative Counsel. In her free time, Mairead enjoys knitting, hiking, and trying new recipes.

Taylor Elop is a second-year Master of Public Policy student with a concentration in health policy. She previously graduated from the University of Oregon with degrees in Political Science and Planning, Public Policy, and Management. Born in California and raised in Washington, she is dedicated to learning about the relationship between the environment and health outcomes. In her free time, Taylor enjoys going on scooter rides and hanging out with her cat, Twyla.

Annabelle Farkas is a first-year Master of Public Policy student. She graduated from the University of Michigan with a degree in Political Science and International Studies. In her free time, she enjoys reading, watching college football, and caring for her ever-growing collection of plants.

Carolina Gutierrez is a first-year Master of Public Policy candidate at The Trachtenberg School of Public Policy and Public Administration, concentrating on social and urban policy. She graduated from Wayne State University with a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science. Based on her previous experience in the legal field, she has interests in comprehensive immigration policy and reform as well as nonprofit management. During her spare time, Carolina enjoys reading, staying active, and spending time with family and friends.